Robbing the poor to pay the rich?

On remembrance Sunday more than 70 people attended the service in St Silin's. The fallen were remembered, the bell tolled, the wreaths were laid and the Last Post sounded. Only one thing was missing: a priest.

Has the church deserted the countryside? Far from it, the church hierarchy sees rural pastures as a land to be milked. In the topsy-turvy world of St Asaph the poor support the rich, and while country churches close a new one is to be opened in Wrexham.

St Asaph is demanding a 'share' – that's the amount the parish church has to pay the diocese – of more than £11,000 a year from Llansilin. Based on the latest census figures that works out at £14 for every person in the parish. If Colwyn Bay, with a population of 31,000 were asked to pay the same it would have to find £484,000, Ruthin would pay £73,000. But the diocese calls it a fair share.

In fact the share demanded for the Tanat Valley, which is the most dispersed, rural and smallest of all mission areas is 32% above the average. In Llansilin we have lost our resident vicar and in return are rewarded with a proposal to increase the amount we pay by 15%. And the diocese calls it a fair share.

For many people in the village this really seems an issue of little importance. After all, most people don't go to church regularly, so why does it matter? For many on a day-to-day basis it may not, but at Christmas and Easter we see a very full church and at those key moments in people's lives, weddings and funerals, the church can be overflowing.

And then there are those unknown and uncounted moments when those in sorrow, despair or simply in need of quiet go unnoticed into the church to think, gain some momentary peace, and perhaps pray.

In past times you would have been required to pay a tithe, up to a tenth of your income, to the church - and in Germany you still are. With an income like that we wouldn't have to worry about finding money to keep both church and vicar. As it is we can struggle on with just £14 a head and by supporting all the fund raising events that St Silin's organises you can make a real contribution – of course you can always drop something into the donation box too. But if you want to see the younger generation married in their own village, the older generation remembered in the village as they pass on, and perhaps find their last resting place here, please, support your church however you can. We need to pay our share, whether it's fair or not,

New group explores Llansilin's historic houses

A new group has been formed for everyone who is interested in the history of the village's old houses and farms. Sixteen people attended the first meeting and Mary Cunnah, who has organised the group explained; "We were inspired by a talk on the work of Discovering Old Welsh Houses (DOWH) and it is important that we try to document the history of ancient buildings; too many have already been swept away.. We have already split into a series of sub-groups, each of which is researching a particular property."

Much of the research has been made easy by the Nesta Morgan archive which fills several cupboards in the church. It is the result of Nesta's life-long passion for recording the history of Llansilin from every available source. Now the DOWH group is sifting through this vast wealth of material to collate the information on each house, and already a mass of forgotten detail is emerging.

The group meets in the parish room on the second Monday of each month at 2.00 pm and anyone who is interested is welcome to come along to delve into the history of their own house or any of the wealth of old buildings that lie at the heart of the village's history.

Plas Newydd, built in the early years of the seventeenth century, was demolished by Denbighshire County Council in the 1920s

From superheroes to our war heroes

It doesn't seem possible that there are only a few weeks left until school breaks up for the Christmas holiday!

September seems such a long time ago now but it was pretty busy for the children. On 24th

September it was Superhero Day and all the pupils came to school dressed in some fantastic Superhero outfits (pictured) – needless to say this was a huge success and the children enjoyed dressing up!

On 26th September the whole school visited Yr Ysgwrn, Trawsfynydd to see the homeplace of Hedd Wyn and we also visited Byd Mary Jones World on the way home. (pictured opposite)

At the beginning of October the KS2 pupils took part in the netball and football tournaments at Llanrhaeadr Primary School – they did very well and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. On 5th October Year 6 children completed their Cycling Proficiency and we also held a Red, White and Blue day where the children came to school in those colours for a donation towards the ABF Soldiers Charity. On 11th October we held our Harvest Festival in St.Silin's Church and had a collection for the ABF Soldiers Charity (again all in keeping with our theme of WWI).

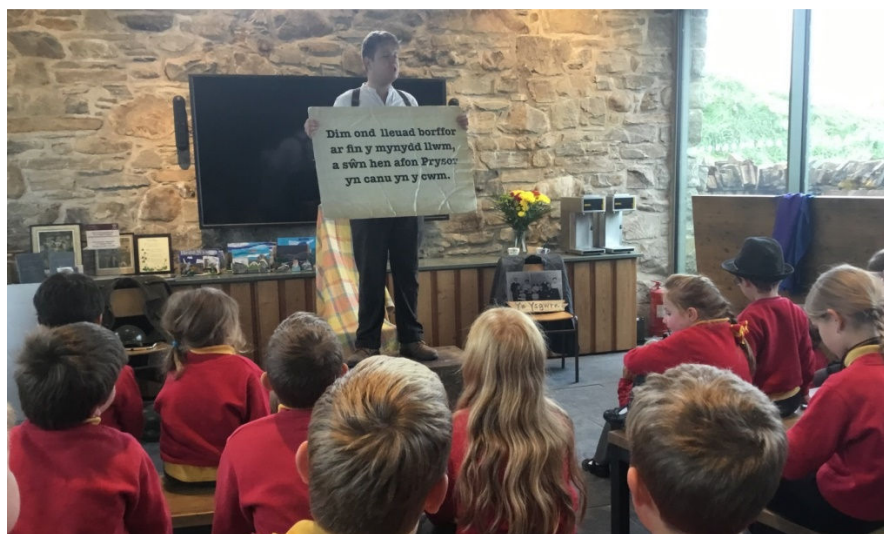

In October some of our KS2 children attended a very busy two day residential trip to Cardiff where they packed in an enormous amount of activities. On Remembrance Sunday, 11th November, the KS2 children re-enacted a very moving scene of Christmas Day in the trenches in France when ordinary soldiers of both sides met in no man's land to exchange gifts, play football and sing carols. The hall was packed for a very poignant performance, which was followed by readings from Hedd Wynn in both Welsh and English. Well done children, it was so lovely to watch, and left a few damp eyes.

Some of our KS2 pupils took part in a swimming gala at The Flash in Welshpool and did extremely well. Again, well done!! Finally, on Children in Need day and the pupils came to school wearing yellow and/or spots for Pudsey.

Meanwhile, we also have a few trips lined up on the run up to Christmas – and that will soon be here, with the school's carol service in St Silin's on 13th December at 6.00 pm.

At Yr Ysgwrn Trawsfynydd - the home of Hedd Wynn

A day to remember

The 11th November 1918 was no ordinary day, and exactly a hundred years later 11th November in Llansilin was also no ordinary day. The village came together in an act of remembrance that showed how much we respect the heroic young men from this village who fought in the Great War. Eighty left their homes to fight; thirty never returned.

More than 70 people attended the service of remembrance in St Silin's and the wreath laying at the war memorial when the names of all Llansilin's fallen were read out and the Last Post was sounded before two minutes silence. Malcolm Butcher and his wife had travelled all the way from Leicester to attend the service because their great uncle Arthur Morris is remembered on the memorial.

During the church service a beautiful commemorative kneeler made by Christine Williams was dedicated (picture page 10).

In the evening the Memorial Hall was packed for a performance by the school and a World War I sing-along. There were a few hankies in evidence when the school performed a re-enactment of the Christmas truce when soldiers of both sides met, exchanged gifts and played football before returning to their trenches to continue the slaughter. The children singing Holy Night was particularly poignant and it was followed by readings in both languages from the Welsh war poet Hedd Wynn.

Nia Turner led us all in enthusiastic and generally tuneful renderings of the old songs including Pack up your troubles and It's a long way to Tipperary before we gathered to see the splendid beacon at the top of the Gyrn. It was one of more than a thousand beacons throughout the country and required a huge effort by the community council in gathering the material, transporting it to the summit and then defying the appalling weather to get it blazing.

Finally the church bells, which had tolled muffled in the morning, rang out joyously for peace, ending a day when the village showed how much it cared for those who fought and died a century ago.

Where did they come from and where did they go?

Looking at the names on the roll of honour in the Memorial Hall it's impressive that between 1914 and 1918 Llansilin could send 80 young men to fight in the Great War. Where did they all come from? The census figures show how a village became a small town, and then shrank again.

Unsurprisingly, perhaps, Llansilin now has much the same population that it did 400 years ago. But what is surprising is the fact that in 1871 the population of the parish peaked at 4,136. Yet within two decades it had more than halved to 1,548. Today it is roughly half that number again.

The 1871 census figure does, of course, cover more than just the village and it's interesting that in 1681 there were just 25 households in the nucleus of the village while the township of Rhiwlas, which covered almost half the parish, had 64 households, but only the same number of people. Presumably this was because the trades were concentrated in the village, and there were plenty of them. It's worth remembering that once we even had our own electricity and bus companies.

But why was there such an explosion of population in the late Victorian era, and where did the parish manage to pack a population of more than 4,000? The answer is in 849 houses – now we have little more than 300, so where are the missing 500? Discovering Old Welsh Houses has a lot of discovering to do.

Gweinidogaeth Bro

Mae dail y coed wedi bod yn fendigedig ac meant wedi aros ar y coed yn hwyrach nag arfer eleni. Doedden nhw'n wledd i'r llygaid.

Cawsom Wyl Ddiolchgarwch fendithiol iawn, gyda phregeth amserol gan Y Parch Gwilym O Jones a gwasanaeth dan ofal yr ieuentid i gloi y gweithgareddau.

Tristwch i ni gyd oedd clywed bod Alice Jones wedi ein gadael ar ôl brwydr hir yn erbyn ei hafiechyd, ac yna ymhen tair wythnos i Wil, ei gŵr, ein gadael hefyd. Daethant yma o Ddyffryn Clwyd yn y 60'au a bu'r ddau yn gefnogol iawn i fywyd Cymreig yr ardal. Cydymdeimlwn a'r plant a'u teuluoedd i gyd.

Llongyfarchiadau i Brian a Liz Evans ar ddod yn Daid a Nain eto. Mae'r ddau wŷr yn digwydd rhannu yr un penblwydd !

Edrychwn ymlaen at Wyl y Nadolig gyda'r siopau yn llawn danteithion ond gadewch i ni gofio am rai sydd yn llai ffortunos na ni yn enwedig yr adeg yma. Boed bendith yr Wyl arnoch i gyd.

The leaves have been wonderful and have stayed longer than usual on the trees this year. A colourful sight for sore eyes.

Our Harvest Thanksgiving sermon was conducted by The Reverend Gwilym O Jones and the festival ended with a service led by the youngsters in our congregation. Both services were beneficent to all.

It was with sadness that we heard that Alice Jones had left us after a long battle against her illness, and within three weeks Wil, her husband, had also left us. They came to farm here from Dyffryn Clwyd in the 60's and they were always supportive of all Welsh activities in the area. We send our condolences to the children and their families.

Congratulations to Brian and Liz Evans on becoming Taid and Nain again. Both grandsons share the same birthday. What a coincidence!

Now we look forward the Christmas Season with the shops full of all sorts of delicacies, but let us remember the ones who are far less fortunate than ourselves especially at this time of the year. A happy and a peaceful Christmas to you all.

Church news

Help to crown the year

Once again from the church tower a Crown of Light will shine out across the valley throughout advent and Christmastide. And as last year showed, with the new street lighting it will stand out dramatically as you cross the bwlch.

. Each year the proceeds are given to local charities. In 2017 we raised £454 which was shared between the Severn Hospice and Hope House. You can help us to do even better this year; there will be a collecting box in the village shop or you can just give your donation to a church member.

The Crown of Light will be switched on following St Silin's plygain on 7th December.

Thanks to the Ivy League

Fighting the invasion of ivy on the churchyard walls is a constant battle so many thanks to the farmers who came to tackle it with serious hedge-cutting gear.

The kneeler made by Christine Williams for St Silin's to commemorate the centenary of the Armistice in 1918.

Thanks also to the residents who responded to a request to refrain from parking along the wall when the ivy was due to be cut so that the machinery could complete the job. Sadly though, it is a never-ending job, and if anyone would like to help with the problem the churchwardens would be glad to hear from them.

The fifth Sunday mission area service on 30th December will be at Penybont Fawr at 10.30 am

If you see something suspicious

Thieves aren't always stupid. Often they'll turn up in a van dressed as workmen and seem to be doing some legitimate work on the church roof. In fact they are stripping the lead.

There's been a number of incidents in our area so please keep an eye open. If you see someone on the roof of the church, or anywhere else that there might be lead, no matter how respectable they look, please contact a churchwarden on 791 250 or 791 563. It may be a false alarm, but better that than a flooded church and a huge bill.

It's a long trip to the tip

We are now faced with a 30 mile round trip to dispose of garden waste following Powys County Council's decision to remove the green skip from Llansilin car park. The county was criticised for the inadequacy of it's 'consultation' before removing the skip. It is another case of rural areas being penalised and the chairman will write to Powys expressing the concern felt by the community council and people in the village.

The new clerk to the council is Ann Edwards and to replace the vacancy on the CC following Pat Lovell's resignation it was agreed to co-opt David Price, who was the only volunteer to express an interest.

The condition of roads is a continuing concern and the CC has written to Powys raising in particular the late authorisation of snow ploughs, which caused considerable problems last winter. So far there has been no response. The council was also concerned that the speed ramps at the top of the village are in poor condition and county councillor Aled Davies will chase this up as a matter of urgency.

Meanwhile Cllr Davies had taken up the complaints about misuse of the village car park where it appeared that vehicles and even a boat had been abandoned. County officials have now visited the car park and issued removal notices on a number of apparently abandoned items.

The problems on by-ways where leisure use by 4x4s has caused considerable damage was also raised with the county. They have asked for photographic evidence of the damage together with an OS grid reference and suggest that a diary should be kept of incidences.

This is something that could be highlighted on the CC website which is now regarded as a priority. Powys has provided a set-up grant and the council has now approached the company used by Llangedwyn.

The council has fully supported a planning application from Mike Evans at Glyndwr Garage to create a new workshop at the Old Coach Yard – an appropriate site for the workshop, and with the new houses being built it is unlikely to be under-used.

Meanwhile, as work continues on the roof of the Memorial Hall, councillors agreed to make a grant of £500 to the hall and councillor Huw Edwards will represent the CC on the hall committee. It was also agreed to put £200 towards the cost of grass cutting and maintenance in that part of the churchyard which the community owns but which St Silin's maintains. The council will also sponsor an edition the newsletter.

Finally, councillors have inspected the public lavatories and have compiled a list of remedial cleaning and repair works that needs to be carried out and quotes are being sourced. A relief to the village.

The next meeting of the Community Council will be on Tuesday, 8th January 2019 at 7.30pm in the Village Institute.

A fizz and fun summer for the church's Friends

On a glorious July evening we sat on the terraced garden at Penybryn looking over the sunlit valley and enjoyed strawberries and wine. Later we enjoyed a sumptuous meal in a marquee at Ty Newydd and ended the year with a tonic for the winter – gin and tonic. The Friends of Llansilin Church know how to put the fun into fundraising.

The marquee lunch was shared with the friends of Oswestry orthopaedic hospital and still made over £1,600 for each organisation. The next scheduled event is a concert in May. Details in the next newsletter.

But before then you can buy Friends of Llansilin Church Christmas cards. These are made from an original painting by Mary Cunah (pictured). And there is still a handful of last year's cards of angels circling the Crown of Light. You can see and buy both in the village shop.

Fancy sleeping out in the worst of winter?

You probably don't, but some have little option. Wrexham has a higher proportion of people sleeping rough than anywhere in Wales and the churches are planning to help them. From January to March halls will provide a hot meal and a bed for the night.

If you have spare single-bed linen or a duvet you can donate, or would like to volunteer to help cook a supper and provide a friendly face for those in desperate need during the coldest months of the year please contact Jeffrey Olstead on 791 250 or email j.olstead@cantab.net
